HR Council launches redesigned website

(Ottawa, February 14, 2008) The HR Council for the Voluntary & Non-profit Sector (HR Council) is pleased to announce the launch of the redesigned hrcouncil.ca.

With its visually stunning design, intuitive navigation and interactive features, the new hrcouncil.ca is a place for people to connect, share and learn. As the premiere source of information, tools and resources related to human resources in the voluntary and non-profit sector, the new hrcouncil.ca features:

- ◆ An updated and expanded HR Toolkit

Formerly known as HRVS, this popular resource features a simplified navigational structure, expanded content and updated tools, templates and resources.

- ◆ A new HR Forum

Featuring discussion forums, a community calendar and a host of other interactive features, the HR Forum is a place to connect with peers and share perspectives.

- ◆ Sector perspectives in a new Trends & Issues feature

Timely, relevant, and thought-provoking articles ‘from the field’ will cover specific trends and issues, with readers invited to share their thoughts and perspectives.

“With new features, updated content and the ability to connect with peers, the site is more than just an online HR resource,” says HR Council Executive Director Lynne Toupin. “It’s a point of engagement for people who are looking for information about paid employment and HR management in our sector.”
